

In september 2016 , the us fish and wildlife service pro-posed that federal protection under the us endangered species act be given to the rusty patched Bumble Bee . This would be the first -ever listing under the act of a native bee species in the continental US.